

It's the time of year when the largest number of Americans file for divorce. The very idea of divorce is terrifying! Making the final decision to move forward with actually getting divorced is the first hurdle. Getting divorced is not something most people decide lightly. You may have spent months, even years contemplating divorce and whether or not it was right for you. There were signs, unhappiness, lack of communication, infidelity, whatever the tipping point was, here you are - NOW WHAT?

When couples decide to divorce, often the first hire is an attorney. Unless your situation is simple (uncomplicated assets, no children, short marriage), hiring an attorney before you have figured out a plan is a huge mistake. You'll be asked for a large retainer, your attorney may or may not be well-versed in similar situations and you may not even know what you want. Your attorney will be representing you for a long time. You'll be telling your divorce attorney all the intimate details of your life. You want to make sure that you are making the best choice for you.

When you're overwhelmed with the emotions of the moment and having trouble thinking straight, the best thing to do is nothing!

Once you've stopped to absorb the magnitude of what's about to take place, then you can start to figure things out. Divorce is a project with multiple tasks involving many people. It takes a long time and has many moving parts. Why not choose a Divorce Concierge as your Divorce Project Manager?

What does a Divorce Concierge do?

At The Divorcierge, you get the benefit of both a Life Coach and a Project Manager. What makes us unique is the ability to hold space for your emotional needs while helping you navigate all the many tasks of your Divorce Project.

A Divorce Concierge helps you gain clarity.

What do I need to do first?

Who do I want to be going through this process?

What is my ultimate goal post-divorce and how do I get there in the least painful way possible.

Once you've developed a plan, then you start to move forward with the many tasks ahead such as:

Hiring Legal Counsel

Figuring out your finances

Navigating the changes with your children

Dealing with the long legal process

Ultimately, working with a Divorce Concierge will give you the tools to get through your divorce start again and thrive in your new life! Email Info@TheDivorcierge to schedule a consultation.
